Abstract: A field study was carried out to determine the flora of the forest series of Yirce-Bürmece-Kömürsu and Muratdere (Bilecik-Bursa) during 1992-1995. In terms of species and subspecies, the flora of the area consisted of 505 taxa including 358 species, 90 subspecies and 46 varieties belonging to 299 genera of 79 families. Nine taxa are new for A2 and 56 are new for B2 square. The highest number of taxa were from the families of Asteraceae 10.0% and Fabaceae 9.2%. The phytogeographical distribution was as follows: Euro-Siberian elements 15.7%, Mediterranean elements 10.5%, Irano-Turanian elements 7.3%. The rate of endemism was 5.9% compared with the total flora.

Introduction

The location of our study area is among the Bilecik-Bursa-Kütahya provinces in the A2 and B2 squares described by Davis (1, 2). This area is also at the junction point of three phytogeographic areas which makes it a transition zone. The altitude of the area is between 450 and 1250 m. Surface measurement of the study area is 360 square kilometers (Figure 1).

Major soil groups of the study area are brown forest, alluvial map.1 colluvial and red-brown. The dominant one is brown forest soil (3). Major rock structures are limestone and schist.

The climate of the area is studied according to the meteorological data of Bozüyük, İnegöl and Bilecik. The average temperature of Bilecik is 12°C and the annual precipitation is 436.4 mm. They are 10.4°C and 484.2

mm and 12.3°C and 568.4 mm for Bozüyük and İnegöl respectively (4). When all the climate data is evaluated, it is seen that a part of the study area belongs to the semi-arid Mediterranean and the rest of the area belongs to low-precipitating Mediterranean climate regions. The precipitation regime belongs to the East Mediterranean (5).

Main vegetations of the study area are forest, shrub, grass and humid stream vegetation. The phytosociological situation of the plant association is seen to belong to forest elements of Quercus pubescentis and Quercus Fagetea classis (6).

The aim of our study was to identify the flora of the region which had not been studied previously except irregular plant collections. The results introduced in our study are expected to contribute to the floristic data of Turkey.

Materials and Methods

Vascular plants were collected from the area defined above between 1992 and 1995. Flora of Turkey and the East Aegean Islands, and other sources were used as the main sources for the identification of the plant specimens (7-9). Ankara University Herbarium (ANK) specimens were used to compare when an identification problem arose. The Poaceae species were either identified or checked by Prof. Dr. Musa Doğan (METU). The flora are listed according to P.H. Davis (7). A list of the flora is given in the appendix. The list first gives taxa for the species and subspecies followed by locality, phytogeographical region, endemism and occurrence as a new record, respectively. Herbarium record numbers given at the end of the list are organized sequentially in order to find materials easily.

The phytogeographical regions mentioned in the text are abbreviated as follows: Euro-Sib.- Euro-Siberian; Eux.-Euxine; Medit.-Mediterranean; Ir.-Tur.-Irano-Turanian; End.-Endemic and (*).- New record.

The voucher specimens are kept in the Herbarium of Faculty of Sciences and Arts, Osmangazi University (OUFE).

Discussion

In this study, 505 taxa including 358 species, 90 subspecies and 46 varieties belonging to 299 genera of 79 families were identified. After the identification of all of the specimens, the phytogeographical distributions of 171 were determined (7). The phytogeographical distribution of the specimens is shown in Table 1. The abundance of Euro-Siberian and Euxine province elements (15.7 %) and widespread presence of taxa such as Fagus orientalis Lipsky, Carpinus betulus L. (Fagaceae), Pinus sylvestris L. and Abies nordmanniana (Stev.) Spach subsp. bornmülleriana (Matff.) Code and Cullen (Pinaceae) indicate the high influence of the Euxine province in the study area (2). On the other hand, the contribution of the Mediterranean (10.5 %) and Irano-Turanian (7.3 %) elements to the flora of the area cannot be overlooked (1). The ratio of endemism is 5.9 % consisting of 30 taxa.

The lack of considerable differentiation of the distribution ratios of the studied taxa in terms of phytogeographical region indicates the effects of three different phytogeographical regions on the study area (Table 1).

Table 1. The comparison of phytogeographical distribution of taxa determined in this study and in previous studies carried out in nearby regions.

	Euro-Sib		Medit		Ir-Tur		Endemism
	%	No.	%	No.	%	No.	%	No.
Türe (1997)	15.7	80	10.5	53	7.32	38	5.94	30
Ekim-Akman (1991)	20.0	-	25.0	-	18.0	-	10.0	-
Çırpıcı (1989)	13.0	117	11.3	119	10.0	95	12.8	114

The endemism ratio of the study area (5.9 %) is very low compared with the average endemism ratio of the flora of Turkey (30%). It is known that the regions which have high endemic ratios are Central Anatolia, East and South Anatolia (10). However, the endemism ratio of the Black Sea region is about 5%, which is the result of the presence of more stable environmental factors when compared with the Central, Eastern and South Anatolian regions of Turkey. The similarity of the study area to the Black Sea region and the lack of extreme ecological factors may be one of the most important reasons for the low endemism ratio of the study area. The endemism ratios of Murat Mountain (11) and Sündiken Mountain (12) given in previous studies were high compared with our ratios. It was determined that one of the reasons for these low ratios are the locations of these mountains. Murat Mountain is in the Mediterranean phytogeographical region and Sündiken Mountain is in the Irano-Turanian phytogeographical region. In addition, another reason may be the different altitudes of the study area from the ones reported in the literature (11, 12).

Soil and climate are key factors for the vegetation of an area. That is why Mediterranean and Irano-Turanian elements were mostly identified in the east of the study area (around Bozüyük) where precipitation is 436.4 mm. On the other hand, Euro-Siberian elements were dominant at the other parts of the study area which has high precipitation (568.4 mm).

The families including the most number of taxa, their endemism ratio and phytogeographical distribution are given in comparison with the nearby regions of the study area (Tables 1 and 2). Euro-Siberian elements are seen to be in a higher ratio when the phytogeographic distribution of taxa is compared with the other elements in the study area, whereas the distribution ratio of Mediterranean elements is similar to that in the previous report (11). Irano-Turanian elements are relatively much fewer than those of Murat Mountain, located at the southwest and Sündiken Mountain at the northeast of the study area. This indicates a low Irano-Turanian influence.

Information obtained from the present study and previous reports about the taxa is given in Table 2, including the highest 10 families and their ratios, which almost constitute half of the total plants of the study area. Asteraceae and Fabaceae have the highest ratio which is the same in the areas adjacent to our study area except Boraginaceae, which was not mentioned in the previous report (12). Caryophyllaceae was also reported to be in a higher ratio than in our results (11). The families which are not mentioned above but included in Table 2 are found to be in ratios almost similar ratios to those in the previous reports (11, 12).

The following genera have the highest taxa, which each are represented by 9 taxa: Trifolium L., Salvia L., Euphorbia L., Ranunculus L.

Rare and threatened status of the plants in the study area is also listed using a recent publication (13). As a result of comparisons with this list, some of the taxa which can be listed as rare are Phlomis longifolia Boiss. & Bal. var. longifolia (Lamiaceae), Dianthus cibrarius Clem (Caryophyllaceae), Asparagus tenuifolius Lam (Liliaceae), Centaurea olympica C. Koch. The ones which are listed as vulnerable are Linum hirsutum L. subsp. anatolicum (Boiss.) Hayek (Linaceae). To the best of our knowledge, nine and 56 are new records for A2 and B2 squares respectively, collected and identified during the present study for the first time.

In conclusion, the area reported in the present study represents a transition zone which is dominantly affected by the Euro-Siberian region, whereas other phytogeographic elements are also seen in considerable amounts. General vegetation structure is forest and shrub formation, leaving open spaces and especially shrubs permitting sunlight for the herbal plants, contributing to the increased taxa number of our study area.

Considerable destruction of the vegetation of the area is not seen except at road sides even though the economy of the area depends on agriculture and forest products. Moreover, being a detailed floristic study, this report may be a significant basis for possible variations in the future due to economic, agricultural, industrial and pollution effects and the most evident contribution of it is anticipated for the flora of Turkey.
